Frederic Grant Gleason (1848-1903) was born in Middletown, Connecticut, son of a banker who was also an amateur musician. He studied with Dudley Buck, and then travelled to Germany to study at the Leipzig Conservatory. Returning to the U.S., he went to Chicago, where he was taught, composed, and was music critic for the Chicago Tribune and other newspapers. He became president of the American Patriotic Musical League and was director of Chicago Auditorium concerts. His compositions include a processional written for the Chicago World's Fair, a symphonic poem, a tone poem, a piano concerto, a cantata, and two operas.

(1903)

MY mind to me a kingdom is;
Such present joys therein I find,
That it excels all other bliss
That earth affords or grows by kind:
Though much I want that most would have,
Yet still my mind forbids to crave.

Content I live, this is my stay;
I seek no more than may suffice;
I press to bear no haughty sway;
Look, what I lack my mind supplies.
Lo, thus I triumph like a king,
Content with that my mind doth bring.

Sir Edward Dyer (1543-1607)

TERMS OF USE

These editions are available as a service to the choral community, offering inexpensive access to public domain literature. Choir resources can purchase other literature still under copyright, especially to support those creating and publishing new compositions and arrangements. These editions have been created using public domain sources under U. S. copyright law. Out of respect to the research, time and effort invested:

please print and issue an edition in its entirety, retaining notices, attributions, and logos.
please do not consider this edition a source for creating another edition.

If performed, sending a copy of the concert program would be a valuable affirmation. If recorded, notification and attribution would be appropriate professional courtesies and a copy of the recording would be greatly appreciated!
