H. J. Regnissik was a humorous pseudonym for John H. Kissinger (1845-1922). He was born in Indiana County, Pennsylvania. He was a music teacher for twenty-five years and active as a soloist in the New Florence and Blairsville region. He also conducted the New Florence Musical Association. He served on the first council of St. John's Lutheran Church in New Florence. After retiring, he was engaged in the milk business. He died in Blairsville. He wrote a number of hymns and song published in different compilations for church and pedagogical use.

Oh, stay on the farm, boys, contented,
However so humble your lot;
A mansion so grand in the city
Is not half so good as a cot;
Your life will wear out with excitement,
And soon city ways lose their charm;
So, if you'd live long and be happy,
Stay home, boys, stay home on the farm.

*Stay at home on the farm,
Away from all danger and harm;
So, if you'd live long and be happy,
Stay home, boys, stay home on the farm.*

Yes, stay on the farm, boys, and never
Out in the wide world long to go;
And don't be ashamed of your labor,
To plow, and to reap, and to mow;
Don't come to the city, there's danger,
Its life will soon bring you to harm;
But safe from all worry and trouble,
Stay home, boys, stay home on the farm.

Then stay on the farm, boys, remember,
There's plenty for you and for all;
You're free from a thousand temptations
That over your pathway would fall;
The city's bright streets and its wonders
May have for you many a charm;
But don't be too eager to see them;
Stay home, boys, stay home on the farm.
